You took my seat on the bus.
Everyone knows that that's where I sit.
How can you sit on the bus?
Look, you don't even fit.
You took my seat on the bus.
How could you do such a thing?
I can see if you sat if you must,
next to the seat that your in.

I sat there in the first grade.
My feet didn't touch the floor.
By the last day of the second grade,
I sat there with my Labrador.
In the third grade I can show you where,
my gummy bears hit the floor.
In the fourth grade I forgot my lunch.
I reached back and found some more.

You took my seat on the bus.
Everyone knows that that's where I sit.
How can you sit on the bus?
Look, you don't even fit.
You took my seat on the bus.
How could you do such a thing?
I can see if you sat if you must,
next to the seat that your in.

Now that I'm in the fifth grade,
I've sat here for five years.
If you check the shape in the plastic seat,
it fits my seat real clear.
Look there's a seat in the next row.
Looks green, looks plastic, looks new.
If you move you'll get the window view,
and maybe bubble gum to chew.

You took my seat on the bus.
Everyone knows that that's where I sit.
How can you sit on the bus?
Look, you don't even fit.
You took my seat on the bus.
How could you do such a thing?
I can see if you sat if you must,
next to the seat that your in.

I really sat here most of my life.
In fact, my father sat in this same chair.
For all I know it was my grandfather too.
It's the same shape, same green, same bus, same driver.
I don't want to have to cry.
We would all get very wet!

You took my seat on the bus.
Everyone knows that that's where I sit.
How can you sit on the bus?
Look, you don't even fit.
You took my seat on the bus.
How could you do such a thing?
I can see if you sat if you must,
next to the seat that your in.

You took my seat on the bus.
You took my seat on the bus
You took my seat on the bus.
You took my seat on the bus.
Heh you!

Okay! You can have my seat.
No Problem.
